Green Dot Files Investor Presentation

- Urges Shareholders to Vote on the WHITE proxy card “FOR” Green Dot’s Three Experienced and Highly-Qualified Nominees -

- Six-Step Plan Already Creating Shareholder Value -

- Dissident’s Board Slate of Unsuitable Candidates Puts Green Dot’s Plan and Shareholder Value at Significant Risk-

Pasadena, CA – May 10, 2016 – Green Dot Corporation (NYSE:GDOT) (the “Company”) today announced that it has filed an investor presentation with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) in connection with the Company’s May 23, 2016, Annual Meeting of Stockholders. The presentation is available under the ‘Presentations’ section of www.gdotvalue.com and on the SEC’s website at www.sec.gov.

The presentation highlights:

- The significant progress Green Dot has achieved through the execution of its Six-Step Plan, which is already creating meaningful shareholder value – Green Dot’s share price has increased ~39% since management first announced its new product initiatives on December 2, 2015;
- How Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Steven W. Streit and the Board of Directors diversified and grew the business in the face of significant competitive headwinds;
- How Green Dot’s acquisitions have diversified revenue concentration and generated significant returns for shareholders;
- The qualifications and contributions of Green Dot’s three highly-qualified and experienced incumbent director nominees who have successfully steered the Company through challenges that threatened the Company’s survival, allowing it to emerge the undisputed industry leader in the prepaid industry;
- The interests of Green Dot’s slate are aligned with those of shareholders. Mr. Streit, Mr. Moritz and Mr. Greenleaf together own more of the Company’s stock than the collective holdings of Harvest Capital Strategies and its affiliates, including Harvest’s principal, Jeff Osher, JMP Securities principal, Joe Jolson, and the three Harvest nominees;
- Why Green Dot’s Board unanimously opposes Harvest’s high risk plan that it believes will greatly harm the Company’s ability to achieve its Six-Step Plan to deliver at least $1.75 in non-GAAP EPS in 2017; and
- The Company’s concerns with Harvest Capital Strategies’ slate, particularly two of its candidates, which the Board considers unsuitable director nominees.

“Democracy cannot succeed unless those who express their choice are prepared to choose wisely. The real safeguard of democracy, therefore, is education.” — Franklin D. Roosevelt

Additionally, Green Dot further wishes to address some of the commentary contained in Harvest’s letter to shareholders, dated May 9, 2016.

1. Green Dot understands that Jeff Osher, the author of Harvest’s letters and presentations, feels incensed by Green Dot releasing what it believes to be important and relevant facts about his “meticulously selected” proposed board members. But respectfully, this is not a “smear” campaign, as Mr. Osher describes it. Green Dot believes strongly that only an informed voter can cast an informed vote. As such, Green Dot is seeking to draw shareholders’ attention to aspects of Harvest’s nominees that investors might find troubling. Shareholders should know about Mr. Livingston’s personal views on racial matters, and they should know about the judgment he exercised in posting on potentially controversial topics while running for a seat on the board of a public company like Green Dot. The fact that Mr. Osher would attempt to so viciously defend Mr. Livingston's views is even more troubling. In the case of Nino Fanlo, the background check provided by the Company's third party investigator reflected the input of four different individuals who worked with Mr. Fanlo and raised serious concerns, which Green Dot felt were important to share. How can Mr. Osher propose such candidates?

2. Mr. Osher claims that he has thus far kept his campaign "fact based" and not "personal". Yet any observer can conclude that the majority of Harvest's campaign has been focused on undermining the Board's and Mr. Streit's reputation and accomplishments with all manner of propaganda and innuendo. How can Mr. Osher credibly say that his campaign has not contained any personal attacks?
3. Harvest reiterated that Green Dot has not attempted to meaningfully engage in good faith. Yet, Harvest and Mr. Osher were provided unlimited access to Management, the Board and independent directors, including hundreds of meetings, phone calls and emails, yet Harvest discontinued private engagement and launched a disruptive public campaign, dismissed multiple settlement proposals and has stated in their own proxy materials that anything short of adopting Harvest's full agenda is unacceptable. How can Mr. Osher credibly suggest Green Dot has not engaged in good faith?
4. Mr. Osher says that he is a long-term holder interested in increasing the Company's share price. Yet his behavior is far more akin to an aggressive short seller seeking to denigrate the Company's business plans and jeopardize its business relationships.
 - a. Does Mr. Osher really believe that signing yet another deal with Uber where Green Dot can now earn money on both GoBank account instant payments and non-GoBank account instant payments is bad for investors?
 - b. Does Mr. Osher really believe that the Company's strong Q1 performance is because we raised fees on a small segment of Green Dot brand account holders? As described on the Company's earnings call, the strong year-over-year portfolio performance was driven by increases in spend that drives interchange, gross dollar value that drives monthly fees and growth in the Company's reload business, which drives reload fees. Fee changes which Mr. Osher refers to in his letter dated May 9, 2016, accounted for less than $1 million in revenue in the first quarter. Furthermore, the Company was clear in stating that this growth in card revenue was a continuation of a long term trend ongoing for the past five years. Why won't Mr. Osher give credit where credit is due – how can he not be thrilled with Green Dot's first quarter strong performance and increased 2016 guidance?
 - c. When taken in totality, it seems clear that investors should again question Harvest's motives. Mr. Osher's odd choice of proposed directors, Harvest's ongoing vicious personal attacks against the Board and Mr. Streit and Harvest's attacks on Green Dot's business plans and Green Dot's relationship with key business partners, while continuing to denigrate Green Dot's future prospects, seems like the tactics of a short seller trying to destroy a company's stock price; rather than a long-term shareholder looking to drive value for other long shareholders. Should you be suspicious of Harvest's motives?

Green Dot Management and Board is demonstrating significant progress through the execution of its Six-Step Plan, which is already creating meaningful shareholder value – Green Dot's share price has increased ~39% since management first announced its new product initiatives on December 2, 2015.

Green Dot Shareholders are reminded that their vote is extremely important. Green Dot strongly recommends that shareholders vote on the WHITE proxy card "FOR" its highly-qualified and experienced director nominees: Steven W. Streit, Timothy R. Greenleaf and Michael J. Moritz. In addition, Green Dot advises shareholders not return the "green" card, even to withhold on Harvest's nominees.
